The Melbourne Centre for Financial Studies in conjunction with Finsia is pleased to announce the Centre's second International Distinguished Lecture. The International Distinguished Lecture is the major annual event of the Melbourne Centre for Financial Studies. In highlighting the work of the Melbourne Centre the occasion furthers the Centre's mission to enhance Melbourne's national and international reputation for excellence in financial practice, research and education. The Lecture itself is directed to providing thought leadership to the Australian finance and business communities on matters of contemporary global import.

Distinguished Lecturer

Dr. Robert L Joss is Philip H. Knight Professor and Dean of Stanford Business School. A leader in global banking, a former U.S. Treasury Department official, and a Stanford Graduate School of Business PhD, Robert Joss is the School's first Dean from industry in 17 years. Prior to joining the Business School as dean in 1999, Joss was for six years chief executive officer and managing director of Westpac Banking Corporation.

At Westpac, he was credited with refocusing the bank strategically, modernizing and streamlining operations, and restructuring the bank's culture to emphasize teamwork, customer focus, open communication, and community support. He is a director of Wells Fargo & Co., Agilent Technologies Inc., two Australian listed property trusts, and Makena Capital.
